The conservatives gained Montreal west, Quebec county and Drummond and Arthabasca; total 3. A number of constituencies still to hear from. Great excitement over the contest.

WINNIPEG, Oct. 16, 1886.

The returns indicate the defeat of the Quebec conservative government by a majority of two or three.

REGINA, Oct. 13, 1886.

The eighth session of the North-West Council opened to day. Present, Judges Richardson, Rouleau and MacLeod; elected members Perley, Marshall, Hughes, Lauder, Cayley, Jelly, Secord, Cunningham, Wilson, Bedford, and Turriff; appointed member, Hayter Reed. The lieutenant-governor's speech was a lengthy document. It alluded to the progress of the territories as most marked during the past year. There was 71,951 acres of land under cultivation and 14,000 acres of new land broken. The agricultural progress was satisfactory notwithstanding the exceptionally dry season. The cattle industry in the west had made immense strides. Stockmen held forty-five million acres of first-class grazing lands. The completion of the C. P. R. was dwelt upon with pride. In another year the Manitoba Southwestern would be extended to the York, Montreal and Saskatchewan land company colonies. There were early prospects of running the Long lake railway to Saskatoon, and a Hudson Bay line from Regina to Hudson Bay was predicted. During the present season the territories had received a fair proportion of the western immigration. The delegation to Ottawa from last year's council had been a great success. They laid 27 subjects before the government

17 of which were agreed to and the others are to be dealt with. Bills are to be laid before the council regarding the supreme court and court of appeals. The schools ordinance was highly praised. The municipal ordinance had worked well except at Calgary. The present boundaries of the electoral districts are to be revised. The Colonial and Indian exhibition was doing a great work for the territories. He trusted the council would take action to render the territories more noticeable at the exhibition. The Indians were never so contented. The late indications of a restless feeling were caused by a few lawless Indians across the line. Many Indians were evincing a sincere attachment to the pursuits of civilization. The beneficial effect of sending Indian chiefs to the eastern cities was dwelt upon. Sir John Macdonald had devoted much of his life to the advancement of the territories. An audit report would be laid before the council. The speech elicited slight applause. The usual preparations for work by striking committees, etc., were made and the council adjourned. The public was largely represented. Archbishop Tache was present.

BATTLEFORD, Oct. 15, 1886.

Fever dying out here. Work on the barracks going on fast. First severe frost of the season last night. District court adjourned to middle of December.

The Bishop of Saskatchewan passed down on Tuesday.

EDMONTON BULLETIN, OCT. 16, 1886.

THE SPEECH.

The address delivered by the head of the executive to the legislative branch of the government on the commencement of its deliberations—in British dominions called the speech from the throne—is supposed to and generally does contain a sketch of the course of the government since the former meeting of the legislature and an outline of what it is desired to accomplish at the then session. Judging his honor's speech at Regina by this standard it appears that the only action the government of the North-West intends to take at the present session of the Council is to revise the boundaries of the electoral districts, introduce bills to give effect to the federal acts establishing supreme and appeal courts in the territories and take action towards securing the representation of the territories at the proposed permanent Indian and Colonial exhibition. Not a word appears regarding the substitution of representative government for the present system, of embracing the whole population of the territories in the council representation instead of only certain favored sections as at present, or of placing the funds supplied by the federal government for the expenses of government in the North-West in the hands of the representatives of the people from whom it was originally taken and to whom it rightfully belongs. It may therefore be taken for granted that there is no intention on the part of the executive of the North-West to bring forward these matters—unless forced to it by strong public opinion. The allusion to the Ottawa delegation of last session, while admitting that ten out of the twenty-seven—they the most important—requests made upon the federal government have not been granted gives no hint as to what will be done to secure their concession. Indeed when his honor intimates that the delegation was a great success and that these ungranted requests are being considered by the federal authorities it is equal to saying that the partial success already attained is fully satisfactory to him. The suggestion in regard to the Indian and colonial exhibition is a little behind time. The exhibition is now over and may or may not be started again. The territories were unrepresented at it saving what was done by the C. P. R. Of course, better late than never. But to propose to do after the time is past is a poor excuse for not having done at the proper time. But besides matters retrospective and prospective this particular and peculiar address takes in a variety of subjects in perspective. The originality of idea displayed in dealing with these is equal to the originality of their introduction in such overshadowing quantities into an address to a body which can have nothing to do with them beyond venturing an opinion; especially when the actual business of that body is touched on so lightly. The statement that last year was one of marked progress for the territories as a whole; that agricultural returns were satisfactory in the district of Assiniboia; and that the Indians were never so contented is rather astonishing. The basis of the first assertion is doubtless the fact that not a foot of railroad was constructed in the territories; of the second the suggestion of the Regina Leader that the government institute public works to enable the farming population of Assiniboia to tide over their third successive crop failure; and of the third the unprecedented number of Indian outrages occurring in all parts of the country, coupled with the fact that upwards of half the Indians in at least this part of treaty six desire to leave the fostering care of the Indian department and take rank as half-breeds. His honor's attempt to throw the blame of the late outrages—restless feeling he calls them—on Indians across the line would have been more promising of success if the scalps of six Canadian Bloods were not now adorning the tents of the Crows in Montana as the result of a horse-stealing expedition made by them against the Crows not more than a month ago. It may be matter for congratulation that forty-five million acres of first-class grazing land is locked up for the use of say half a million head of stock, but it would have sounded better if the amount of land had been smaller or the amount of stock larger. The prospects of extensive railroad construction having Regina as a hub may be bright, but the circumstances attending the collapse of the North-West Central project do not point that way. The benefit to be attained by taking Indian chiefs on starring tours through the far eastern provinces is a matter of opinion. Possibly it may increase the Indian idea of his own importance as much as of the power of the whites. But his honor had nothing to do with it for the Indians were taken by their missionaries for missionary purposes without regard to the wishes of the government. When his honor went out of his way to deal with matters not immediately concerning the council he might have given his opinion on the Indian pardons, additional half-breed scrip, the growing insecurity of life and property, the permit system, the beer question that was a strong point with him at one time, and a few other little matters of much greater interest than those dwelt upon at such length. The address proves that his honor is not a Bourbon. Possibly he may never learn anything, but he has one of the most convenient faculties of forgetting that ever came to the assistance of a statesman.

ATHABASCA.

The steamer Grahame made three trips this summer from Long Portage on the Clearwater to the rapids at Fort Smith on the Great Slave river. She is laid up for the winter at Fort Chipewyan. The Mackenzie river steamer built at Fort Smith by Capt. Smith was launched and ready to make her first trip when the Grahame was there last. She was expected to winter at Fort Simpson, where Capt. Smith will also winter. The steamer is 80 feet long and 14 feet beam. During the summer Capt. Smith lost his youngest child, about a year and a half old.

Provisions were scarce in the Athabasca country last winter, partly on account of the amount required by the men employed on the new steamboat and partly on account of the failure of the usual supply of deer and musk ox meat, caused by the deer and oxen keeping out on the barren grounds near the sea coast where the winter was mild instead of as usual coming in to the wooded country around the great lakes where the winter was severe.

The passengers bound for the distant mission stations on the Mackenzie and Yukon rivers who passed through Edmonton during the summer were forwarded to their destinations by steamer. A child of Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Garton of Bishop Bonpas' party, born at Ft. McMurray, died a few weeks afterwards.

Capt. Favel made the trip from Fort Chipewyan to Edmonton this fall in twenty days. In going down last spring he was just ten days of travelling from Edmonton to Fort McMurray. By the Long Portage route to Carlton the trip would have occupied twenty-five to thirty days each way.

F. M. JUNEAU, who arrived from the Haney mines on Tuesday last shows the first specimen of gold produced from the mines by ordinary methods. His claim from which the specimen was taken is on the north bank of the river and extends from the river bank to the bank of the river valley about three hundred yards from the river bank. It adjoins on its east side the claims of Messrs. Rainboth and Paradis. It is about two miles up the river from Haney's present claim and close to where Haney built his first shanty or dug out. The flat comprises a first and second bench, the first extending about 200 yards back from the river and the other the remaining 100 yards to the foot of the bank of the valley. The surface of both benches of the flat is covered with about two feet of vegetable mould through which protrude rocks of various descriptions, including slate, granite and quartz, or what are supposed to be these rocks. As appears in the face of the break from the second to the first bench, under the vegetable mould is a layer about two feet thick of a jet black substance in some places as compact as soft stone and in others of a crumbling nature. It is in layers about an inch thick. Under this black substance is red soil or clay. The black substance, by some supposed to be plumbago, attracted Mr. Juneau's attention and where it was exposed he scratched a little of it into his handkerchief with his fingers. Laying it in the palm of his hand and smoothing it over with a knife he noticed that it had a peculiarly glossy appearance and he fancied he could detect specks of gold in it. Throwing a little of it into water after its being powdered up fine it became still more apparent that it contained gold in fine flakes similar to that found in the Saskatchewan. On arriving at St. Albert J. Couture tried about a teaspoonful of this black substance with quicksilver. It formed an amalgam, and on the quicksilver being evaporated left about two grains weight of gold. Besides this specimen Mr. Juneau brought specimens of burnt quartz from a claim about a mile up the creek from Haney's present location on the high land back from the river. These have a striking family resemblance to the white cinder of burnt shale frequently found among the ashes of Saskatchewan coal. A quantity of this substance was pounded up fine and at the old government mill the party accompanying Mr. Juneau placed some of it in an old scoop shovel and by building an immense fire over it succeeded in running out of it a quantity of white metal of a decidedly silvery appearance but very hard. Specimens of metal similar to this were secured by Haney & Henderson from their blast furnace last spring and by Mr. Rainboth lately at Lacoureur's mill. It is in the search for this metal and in the belief that it contains gold and silver that all the claims have been taken. Mr. Juneau left on Friday for his gold claim to commence development at once.

Fur prices from the Montreal Trade Review of Oct. 1st: Beaver per lb $3 50 to $4, bear per skin $9 to $12, fisher $3 50 to $5, cross fox $2 75 to $3 50, lynx $2 75 to $4, otter $8 to $10, mink and martin 75c to $1, rate 12c, skunk 50c to 75c. Most of these furs are expected to realize higher figures, especially beaver, otter and skunk.

MOR. CLAY, bishop of the Roman Catholic diocese of Mackenzie river, whose headquarters is at Providence below the outlet of Great Slave lake, is visiting Montreal for the benefit of his health. There are about 10,000 Indians in his diocese.

LOCAL.

Geo PHILLEAU has taken a claim at the Hanev mines and is taking his family there. He intends to build a furnace for smelting the rock, believing that silver can be extracted by a very simple process. Mr. Lacombe of St. Albert is also going to experiment in the same way.

GEN. STRANGE has been refunded the amount deducted from his pension by the British government on account of the time spent during the summer of last year in command of the Alberta field force. It would be interesting to know at whose instigation the pension was at first withheld.

D. McLEOD arrived from Calgary on Monday. He left John White, M. P., and party on the way to the Mountain house to examine the timber limits of the Alberta milling company. The company intends to erect grist and saw mills of forty horse-power each at Red Deer crossing this fall and at Edmonton next season.

MR. KNIGHT-BRUCE, an English traveller arrived from Peace river last week with Mr. Jas. McDougall of the H.B.Co. He has taken a number of photographs of places along the Peace river route across the mountains. He left for Beaver lake on a hunting expedition on Wednesday, and purposes wintering at Jasper house.

THE H. B. will build a steamboat at the Athabasca Landing this winter to run on the Athabasca above the Grand rapids and up Lesser Slave river and lake. They will also erect a large warehouse, store and other buildings at the Landing, which will be the depot for the trade of all the country lying northward to the Arctic ocean.

If North-West papers having occasion to mention a shortage of crop this season would kindly speak for themselves and not be quite so comprehensive in their remarks they would confer a favor. There has been no failure, partial or otherwise in northern Alberta. On the contrary crops in all this region are excellent both in yield and sample.

R. STRACHAN, F. D. Wilson and J. J. Hargrave returned from the Hanev mines on Wednesday, very favorably impressed with the location and prospects. They staked out claims and brought specimens upon which they are experimenting. Twenty-eight claims of forty acres each have been taken in the mining locality within the past two weeks.

School trustees were elected as follows in this vicinity on Monday last: Edmonton, J. C. Cameron, M. McCauley and D. Ross. Belmont, J. Kernohan, M. McLeod and G. A. Blake. Saskatchewan, P. Heiminek, O. Bergeron and A. Taillon. St. Albert, Adolph Perraux, Narcisse Beaudry and Elzear Page. Bellerose, Theodore Savard, Victor Laurence and Severe Villeneuve. St. Leon, D. E. Noyes, Leon Harnois and E. Juneau. Sturgeon, G. S. Long, Geo. Sutherland and D. B. Wilson.

The Montreal Star publishes a series of interviews with fur dealers of that city from which it appears that the demand for seal and beaver is likely to keep up the price of these furs or perhaps increase their price while mink and martin are likely to remain low. No mention is made by the dealers of lynx of which several hundred thousand skins have been put on the market at high prices without glutting it. But it is safe to guess that as long as beaver and seal remain high the demand for lynx will not fall off. What becomes of these hundreds of thousands of lynx skins, not a particle of lynx fur being sold as such in a manufactured state, is one of the mysteries of this very mysterious trade.
